EMBARRASSED.

The National Treasury Menaced with a Serious Deficit.

COLLECTIONS FALLING OFF.

Customs Receipts and Internal Revenue Both Decline - The Government to Meet Pixed Charges with Resources Insufficient - No Law to Authorize Borrowing.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27. - The condition of the treasury is serious and is being considered by the president, the cabinet and leading men of both parties in congress. The deficit has already reached grave proportions, and which threatens, before the end of the next steady. The following are representative fiscal year, to be so large as to cause the secretary of the treasury very great embarrassment.

It was hoped at one time that some provision would be made for the issue of bonds or that other means would be devised whereby Secretary Carlisle could at once raise enough money to tide over his troubles, but the sentiment in congress is now so strongly against a bond issue that it is very doubtful whether the necessary legislation could be obtained. At any rate it is not thought it could be secured at this session.

Customs receipts and internal revenue collections have fallen off so heavily that at the present time the daily income is not large enough to meet the daily disbursements. The fixed and definite charges necessitated by the running of the government must be promptly met, the great army of employes in all the executive departments throughout the country, the army and the navy must be paid, and these payments with the interest on the public debt and other miscellaneous disbursements amount in round numbers to $1,000,000 a day. For a long time the receipts have fallen below the million dollar mark and as a result the secretary of the treasury is in the same position as a private individual when he has been living at the rate of $10,000 a year and is only earning $5,000. In the case of a private individual or a merchant who finds his receipts are running behind there is the alternative left to hin either to settle with his creditors at se many cents on the dollar or else bor row money. The secretary cannot re pudiate any of his obligations or make settlement with his creditors and un fortunately there is no authority fo him to borrow.
